

ABSTRACT

The invention concerns generally a cosmetic composition comprising at least one cosmetic active principle and at least one photodimerizable compound enabling a material deposit to be provided on the keratinous materials, which is resistant to washing, and whereof the location is precisely controlled, capable of providing long-lasting cosmetic properties to keratinous materials, and of being removed at any time.